At the ripe old age of 16, Dylan Mahalingam has developed a remarkable passion for public health, improving the quality of life around the world and has traveled & spoken extensively to spread the message of the non-profit he founded in 2004 called Lil'MDG's.

When he's not speaking on behalf of Lil MDG's, you may have noticed he was named one of the '25 most influential young people in the world' or maybe you read his blog posts in the Huffington Post, or seen his TEDxTeen TALK?

Well, if you haven't seen or heard of him, his leadership and commitment to cause has contributed to a model global education program, a book to be published about his journey, countless national & global honors & recognitions and a passion that inspires the children he touches.

Lil' MDGs was founded by children harnessing the power of children to change the world. The organization is working towards achieving Millenium Development Goals that range from global issues of poverty to stopping the spread of HIV/AIDS. Hardly kids stuff.

They utilizes the power of the Internet to educate, engage, inspire and empower youth in every corner of the world to meet these MDG's and under the leadership of Mr. Mahalingam, they have engaged over three million children in 41 countries to make a tangible difference in the lives of over one million children worldwide.

Wonder what Dylan's going to grow up to be...
